The Diverse Leadership Mentoring Program (DLMP)

Students are often unaware of the depths of their personalities, leadership styles and potential for success. Through a formal mentoring relationship with a leading practitioner, the DLMP provides each student an opportunity to discover and develop his or her unique approach to leadership and professional identities. The DLMP mentors are FSU faculty, professional staff, alumni or graduate students with diverse backgrounds and experiences in studying and practicing leadership. Interested in becoming a Mentor?

Training instructors

Instructor

Appreciation Breakfast

On December 9, 2011, a Training Instructor Appreciation Breakfast was held to recognize those that have been instrumental in the delivery of our training programs. We applaud their commitment to supporting our mission, which is to foster a high quality work environment through a focused delivery of workplace training and personal development amongst University employees.

To maximize convenience and accessibility of training for our employees, TOD offers these learning opportunities in classroom, online, and orientation formats. Supervisory approval is required if employees attend a class during their regular work hours, which is then considered time worked. Classes are free of charge to FSU employees.
