Class Meeting Pattern

Course Number: On-Demand

One in a series of training courses targeted to power users of the academic subject areas. This course presents the class meeting pattern subject area and instructs on report prompts and driving queries. Instructors lead trainees through several practice exercises to navigate existing dashboards and build OBI analyses, work with trainees to access the subject area, and provide resources necessary for independent work. This course is appropriate for staff and faculty who develop their own reports in the academic subject areas of myFSU BI.

Power BI: Beginner

Course Number: PBIX01

The first in a two-part series, this course introduces Power BI. Power BI is a business analytics service by Microsoft. This software provides interactive visualizations and business intelligence capabilities with an interface that end users can create their own reports and dashboards. In a hands-on training structure, instructors guide users on building a Power BI dashboard from the ground up. The session starts with basic data cleaning in Excel and concludes with an interactive dashboard featuring several visualizations. Along the way, the user will learn how to install the software, import the cleaned dataset, build the visualizations, incorporate interactive slicers (filters) and format the final dashboard.

Power BI: Intermediate
Course Number: PBIX02
The second in a two-part series, this session builds on concepts presented in the Beginner Power BI course. The course begins with users connecting a new dataset to their Power BI dashboard. Next, participants will clean and prepare data in Power BI using Power Query by engaging with commonly used tools such as replacing values, conditional columns, and custom sort columns. The training continues with the development of dynamic calculations in Data Analysis Expressions (DAX). Finally, participants will understand how to publish and share their own Power BI dashboards, including licensing and publishing to the web. The prerequisite for this class is Power BI: Beginner (PBIX01).
Pre-req: PBIX01

Term Statistics

Course Number: BITS1
The first in a series targeting BI power users, this course presents BI (Business Intelligence) and the Term Statistics subject area. In a hands-on training structure, instructors guide users on building analyses and pivot tables using several targeted exercises. The number one question the Office of Accessibility Services (OAS) gets from faculty is "How can I best help my students?" While each student's situation is uniquely different, there are a few things every faculty member can do to ensure a smooth implementation of accommodations for students.
This discussion will discuss making appropriate academic accommodations and various options that might work for your specific course design. We will also consider recent changes and updates to ADA Law, episodic conditions, resources, and suggestions for implementing universal design in the classroom.

Records Management

Course Number: CORMT1

Available to all FSU employees. This course is highly recommended for individuals responsible for managing and maintaining records, including, but not limited to: Records Management Liaison Officers, HR Department Representatives, Financial Department Representatives, Administrative Staff, Office Managers, and IT Professionals. NCBI Prejudice Reduction Workshop

Course Number: On-Demand

Florida State University is an Affiliate Campus of the National Coalition Building Institute (NCBI). Through this affiliation, Florida State has established a campus NCBI team designed to facilitate prejudice reduction workshops, serve as a critical response team, and incorporate the principles of inclusion and social justice throughout campus policy, procedures, and decision making.

Through this one-day workshop, participants can expect to experience progressive exercises that will examine the information and misinformation we have learned about groups other than our own; the ways in which we have internalized stereotypes about our own social identity groups; ways to effectively respond to microaggressions and other oppressive behaviors that create dialogue ultimately leading to positive change. The workshop is rooted in audience participation and active listening using a series of personal reflections, pair and share, and small-group activities.

*Please contact the Equity, Diversity & Inclusion office at EDI@fsu.edu if your department is interested in this training.

Sustainability and EDI

Course Number: PDSUS1
Equity, Diversity & Inclusion (EDI) is a core component of creating a more just and sustainable world. This course is designed to help us reframe our definition and perspective of sustainability and center the “people” sphere to better integrate social justice into all sustainability efforts. During the session, we will review and discuss a series of case studies that highlight the overlapping nature of environmental and social justice. We will also shed light on how these movements interact and influence each other and lay the groundwork for stronger connections and collaboration between allies.

Sustainability & EDI

Course Number: PDSUS1

Equity, Diversity & Inclusion (EDI) is a core component of creating a more just and sustainable world. This course is designed to help us reframe our definition and perspective of sustainability and center the “people” sphere to better integrate social justice into all sustainability efforts. During the session, we will review and discuss a series of case studies that highlight the overlapping nature of environmental and social justice. We will also shed light on how these movements interact and influence each other and lay the groundwork for stronger connections and collaboration between allies.
