

Courtesy Job Code	Title	Description of Duties
YT00	Courtesy Appointment	Courtesy appointment that does not include compensation or confer employee status on the appointee but has an affiliation with a department and permits the individual to receive access to University privileges such as FSU email accounts, computer system access, or building access. Typically, a consultant, auditor, outside vendor, or non-FSU student.
H9001	Professor	Responsible for teaching, research, service, and related administrative activities. Requires a Doctoral degree. Appointments using these codes may be responsible for duties like those in the corresponding salaried job codes.
H9002	Assoc Professor
H9003	Asst Professor
H9060	Teaching Faculty I	Performs at least 75% Teaching Responsibilities. Received a Doctorate.
H9160	Scholar Scientist	Responsible for research, service, and related administrative activities. Requires a doctoral degree.
H9161	Assoc Scholar Scientist
H9168	Assistant in Research	Classified as research support or research-related activities. Spends 95% of the appointment performing research support/activities during the appointment. Carries a master's degree or higher.
Y7234	Research Support Assistant	Classified as an undergraduate responsible for providing fundamental research support to projects, specialized areas, and technical staff. Responsible for setting up, demonstrating, and maintaining laboratory tools, instruments, or equipment for use by students, faculty, and research staff.
H9182	Graduate Research Assistant (Courtesy)	Classified as a degree-seeking graduate student from another university who performs research activities or assignments related to their academic progress. Or FSU Graduate Student who needs access to specific non-student computer applications.
H9185	Graduate Teaching Assistant (Courtesy)	Classified as a degree-seeking graduate student from another university who assists in the instructional processes and has direct contact with a student or a group of students. The graduate assistant may be directly involved in a tutorial or group instructional environment and may grade papers and analyze work products related to the student's academic program as part of their overall assignment.
H9189	Postdoctoral Assoc (Courtesy)	The appointee was awarded a PhD or the equivalent; the appointment involves substantial full-time research or scholarship; the appointee works under the supervision of a faculty mentor at the University or one of its affiliated institutes. This type of scholar is not paid by FSU but rather by the scholar's home country, institution, or other program, including NIH training grants.
YA00	Courtesy FSU Student	Classified as an FSU Student but does not include compensation or confer employee status on the appointee, but has an affiliation with a department, and permits the individual to receive access to University privileges such as specific non-student computer application access.